The meanest man under the sun is the writer of anonymous slanderous letters .-Such a fellow, named Patterson, got caught at the dirty business in Xenia, Ohio, and he got well punished for it. The Xenia Torch-Light gives the particulars. The slanderer is named Patterson, and the victim of his libels is a respectable widow lady, who saw fit to decline his hand .-The Torch-Light says :

These letters were received by her brother, her brother-in-luw, the minister and elders of the church to which she belongs, and some of the vilest by her sister-in-law. The assistance of the Postmaster was sought, and he put a private mark upon five postage stamps, four of which were sold to the rascal. In the course of some two or three days, two of the marked stamps came back on letters, one addressed to the widow lady's brother-in-law and the other to her minister, both anonymous, and reflecting in the vilest manner upon

The scamp was invited to the house of the injured lady, yesterday afternoon, where he found congregated several of those who had received his letters. The sight wilted him at once. He denied the writing, but the evidence was against him. He declared that he knew nothing deroga-tory to the character of the widow, and signed a certificate to that effect.

After this the widow and her sister-in-law each drew a raw-hide and gave the fellow a flogging. The Torch-Light says: The ladies performed their part of the affair with a will—welting the scamp's back and head in the most approved style. He took the thrashing-a part of it in the presence of a crowd which had gathered to see the fellow dressed—in the most abject style, begging for mercy from those who were avenging the sneaking outrage that he had committed upon them.

A certain gentleman, traveling in great style, and attended by a confidential ve et, recently arrived at Hamburg from Paris. Putting up at one of the best hotels in the former city, he remained there for some days, spending his money freely. One morning at breakfast the traveler called for his bost, and wished to know what eweller in the good city of Hamburg he

The landlord seat a note to the required lapidary, and the great man looked over the assortment of jeweiry and ordered diamonds, &c., to the amount of 200,000 francs, whilch were to be set in a particular menner and delivered on a certain day. On the appointed day came the jeweler and his shopman, and they were duly received by the gentleman, who complained of indisposition, and apologized for appearing in his dressing-gown. The jewels were examined and approved by the wealthy traveler, who placed them carefully in a magnificent secretaire which stood against the wall, and turned the key, but left it in the lock. He then felt for the key of his strong-box, and, not finding it, called for the seevant to look for it. The servant not coming, he called again, and then declared angrily that he must go and see why the rascal did not come. ment may be guessed; the jeweler and his companion, after waiting three-quarters of opened the secretaire, the jewels had vanished, and so had the swinding traveler. (SUCCESSOR TO JAMES TANNER.)

THE UNDERSIGNED WOULD INFORM THE CITIEST OF Wheeling and vicinity that having pursichased the Drug and Prescription Store, formerly owned by Br. James Tanner, he will continue to carry on the Brug business in all its branches. He most perpectually solicits a continuance of the public patronage which has heretofore been so liberally extended towards this old and well known establishment.

It will be his aim to keep everything of the purest kind and at the lowest price, usually to be found in a well furnished Brug establishment.
